Prescott Lighter by 18 Pounds, But to Put Up Fight

Won't Be Any Walk-Away, Coach Rayburn Smith Promises

WOLVES IMPROVED

Prescott Opened Season With Losses, But Has Won Last Two

By LEONARD ELLIS

Gridiron rivalry that had its beginning many years ago will be renewed here Friday night when the Hope and Prescott High School teams clash in their annual game at the Hope stadium, beginning at 7:45 o'clock.

The Bobcats have come through a tough schedule and are undefeated. From all indications they are favored to win.

The Prescott school, which formerly turned out powerful teams, has been weak the past two years.

This season, under a new coach, the school has two victories to its credit. Reports are current that the team is pepped up and expects to give the Bobcats a hard battle.

To Be a Battle

Coach Rayburn Smith told The Star over telephone at noon that "the Bobcats are not going to run away with us."

He declined to elaborate on his statement.

Coach Smith, former Henderson State College star, started out at Prescott this year with only a few letter-men. Starting from scratch, he taught the team the fundamentals, dropped the first few games, and then won two.

It is reported that the team is coming along fast now and will be ready for a hard battle here Friday night. The team will be in good shape reports said.

The Bobcats will have a weight advantage of several pounds to the man. According to weights released at noon by Coach Smith the Prescott team will average 152 pounds, against 170 for Hope.

A large delegation of Prescott fans is expected to follow the team to Hope. Local supporters are expected to turn out in large numbers.

Men and Women Are Massed on Firing Line to Save Madrid

Datallions of men and women, fighting to save Madrid, temporarily halted at suburban Carabanchel Friday the advancing insurgent troops.

Artificial Respiration May Be Needed in Severe Poison Cases

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Acetanilid and phenacetin, as well as pyrazolone, are constituents of many headache remedies which in sufficiently large doses will cause death. Broad measures usually employed in poisoning cases, it may be necessary in severe cases to use artificial respiration to force the breathing to continue.

In poisoning by strong alkalis, such as potash, lye, and washing soda, the mouth and the stomach are burned and the tissues which have come in contact with the poison are likely to be destroyed. In such cases, use of the stomach tube is dangerous. Since weak acids tend to neutralize strong alkalis, these cases are treated by the physician with drinks of weak acid solutions. To protect the tissues, six or eight ounces of olive oil are given by mouth. In these cases it is usually customary, also, to protect the patient from collapse.

Boric acid in ordinary quantities is not a dangerous poison, but infants have been seriously poisoned by drinking boric acid solutions instead of water. A dose of 30 grams of borax also has been reported as being fatal to adults.

For this type of poisoning it is necessary to clean out the stomach and bowels as soon as possible, to give coffee for stimulation, and to protect the kidneys by giving fairly large doses of alkaline drinks.

Many persons have special effects on the tissues by which the actions of these poisons are diagnosed. For instance, the taking of overdoses of quinine is marked by ringing in the ears, disturbances of vision and of hearing.

Styrene causes convulsions and overemphasis in the nervous system. Thallium, which is a constituent of many rat poisons, causes all the hair to fall out and causes severe damage to the kidneys.

Phosphorus brings not only severe collapse, but a garlicky taste in the mouth, burning pain and thirst, swelling of the abdomen, and vomiting of blood.

In the dark, the material vomited by victims of phosphorus poisoning has a phosphorescent glow. Cyanides, turpentine, absinthe, and sandalwood oil also leave characteristic breath odors. These odors will be promptly recognized by the doctor.

The extremely complicated descriptions given here, and the effects of the various poisons, should indicate how important it is to have a diagnosis made as soon as possible and, also, to have the correct type of medical attention before the damage has become too great.

and expects to sell it to a major studio.

Miss Schleck is at work on another yarn which may be destined for Paramount and Bing Crosby. Her big ambition is to get a studio writing contract, but until she does, she'll go on dancing.

She was born in New York and danced in some Ziegfeld shows. Never studied writing, but authored several amateur plays before she came to Hollywood. Dance directors favor her because they're casting choruses. She worked most recently in "Pigskin Parade" and "Gold Diggers of 1937."

Hot Dogs Support Her

Tall, brown-haired Ann Sparling is another hooper who doesn't have to worry when there are no dancing jobs. She owns a half interest in a hot-dog stand at a beach resort near Hollywood.

Pinned her pennies for two years and saved enough from chorus work to swing the deal. A non-professional girl friend runs the bow-wow emporium. Few musicals are in production during the summer, when the beaches are booming, so Miss Sparling's income is augmented at the right time.

A movie city flower shop holds Colleen Ward's attention when she isn't before the camera. She's half owner and is studying floriculture, with the idea of making it a full time job when she becomes a "bag" of 25 and too old for chorus work.

Model Chorines

I started a poll among the dancers working with Eleanor Powell in "Born to Dance." It isn't complete, probably, but it reveals some extra enterprise among chorines. Jean Joyce, Edna Mae Jones, Jean Vernon, and Alice Jans are registered professional models for clothes, shoes, and hats.

Modeling for advertisements is bringing a good many extra dollars to a lot of bit players and chorus girls. The above-mentioned four also are in demand for color ads.

Pearlie Norton, a graduate of the University of California at Los Angeles, works as a laboratory assistant at the school when she is not employed at the studios. Georgia Lee serves as substitute script girl when musicals are slack, but studio production is otherwise brisk.

Mary Milburn, recently of Comet, Okla., wants to become a dramatic actress, and takes care of children to earn extra money for her lessons.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

KATE AND CAROLINE MEED live on a farm. Meed Meadows, with her indulgent, lovable grandfather, JACOB, SAM MEED, and two old Negro servants, ALFIE and ZEPKE, is engaged to MORGAN PRENTISS, but breaks the engagement when she finds him on the point of jilting her for FIVE ELWELL, wealthy and beautiful.

Major Meed loses the farm to JEFF HOWARD, a bitter young aviator. Kate battles Jeff for taking their home and treats him insolently, but he finds himself loving her.

Caroline is invited to sing at a Stephen Collins Foster celebration, and to wear an old-fashioned dress. She accepts, but when Kate looks for the dress she realizes it has been left behind in the attic at Meed Meadows. She goes there, finds the trunk and is about to leave with the dress when she hears steps on the attic stairs. She hides behind a chimney.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXVII

THE steps came nearer. Not hurried, but deliberate and purposeful. . . And then the man himself was in the room.

Kate, flat against the bricks, eyes closed, was thinking, "This must be a nightmare! I can't have gotten myself into a mess like this!"

. . . But she had. And now she opened her eyes to look into the peering face of Jeff Howard, who had stepped around the chimney with the relentless instinct of a hunter on a hare's trail.

"Well," he said shortly, "so it's you! I might have known."

"Why might you?" Kate retorted with hostility.

"Because you can't keep off my property. What do you want this time?"

"Something I left here," Kate answered. "I've just found it. I'll take it now and leave."

"Maybe you'll not take it."

"It's mine, I tell you. The whole trunk's mine."

"Then why do you come sneaking up here like a house-breaker? Some more of your blue-blooded tactics, I reckon?"

The sneer in his voice and the justice of his accusation maddened her. She could not bear to have him in the right and herself in the wrong. She felt despised and humiliated by him.

THEY did not know that, as they looked at each other, seeking words that would taunt and sting, the candle had turned over and consumed the tissue paper from the trunk. The flames of their own anger were too intoxicating to let them perceive the little flicking flames that shot along the floor, eating into the papers spread there.

It was the smell of the parching dried beans that made them see what was happening. In the startled silence, Kate spoke first. "Meed Meadows is burning!"

Jeff Howard uttered an exclamation and started to tread the flames nearest him. Then they both saw a startling thing. The curtains at one of the windows were afire.

The man rushed at them, jerked them from the pole and tossed them through the window.

"You've thrown them on the porch roof!" Kate said in a voice that she did not recognize as her own. She was not herself, just as those engaged in war are not themselves.

Jeff, looking from the window, saw that what she said was true. The roof of the side porch had caught the blazing curtains. They rested in the gutter, surrounded by leaves and twigs that were only a little dryer than the old shingles themselves.

"I'll have to go down!" he cried. He looked at her commandingly. "Do what you can till I get back!"

He was gone, three steps of the stairs at a time. Kate moved out into the hall. She felt curiously detached and exalted. Yes, Meed Meadows was burning! She saw the small flames creep farther.

She noticed that a breeze was fanning them. Another curtain was going.

She came to herself then and dashed into the room. She tore the curtains down and tossed pole and all through the window.

They threw them far and clear. Then she began to stamp the flaming papers in a sort of frenzied dance, and when this did not suffice, she bent and beat them with the only thing available, the heavy silken garment in her hands.

WHEN Jeff Howard returned with rugs and a bucket of water, he found the fire extinguished. He went to the head of the steps and ordered back a man who was following him to give aid.

Returning to the smoke-filled room, he saw Kate Meed leaning against the chimney, coughing. Her hair was disarranged, her face was smudged almost beyond recognition. She said accusingly, "You were a long time coming!"

"You were a long time coming!" She was trembling. Not because she was tired and choking and burned about the hands, but for very horror of the thing she had almost done, the creature she had almost been.

"I got here as soon as I could," he replied shortly. "The cook's away. I had to call one of the men from the barn. And first we had to get a ladder against the porch."

He did not say to her, "Thank you for helping me save my house." She did not say to him, "I'm sorry I set your house afire."

When Kate reached her room at home she found Caroline there. She said to her astonished sister, "Help me pull off my boots, please. My hands are burned. I went to Meed Meadows attic to get some thing I left in a trunk there. I lit a candle and accidentally started a fire, but I put it out."

Caroline cried out sympathetically, "Such awful things happen to you, Kate! You poor dear! What's that?" she asked, looking at some scorched silken shreds that hung over Kate's arm.

"The dress," Kate answered grimly. "Your 1935 ball gown, Sweet."

"Oh!" Caroline wailed. "It's ruined! My lovely costume!"

"I had to use it for a flail," Kate explained. "There was nothing else to beat the fire with. Well, it was God's will, as Dumas would say."

"It was your own criminal carelessness," Caroline disagreed, a sob in her voice.

WHEN her scorched cheeks and burnt hands had been cleaned and soothed by Caroline, Kate said sadly, "I've almost ruined things for you, Caroline. You'll not want to sing without the dress, will you?"

"I don't know," Caroline answered uncertainly. "I was counting on it because a costume puts you in the spirit of a thing." She examined the heap on the floor. "It's done for, Kate. All except a few of the garlands and the heavy boned lining."

Kate said quickly, "That's like the foundation of a house, the lining! I'll buy some silk. I'll use some of the money from Brown Boy, so don't say we can't afford it! I'll duplicate the dress on the old lining. I'll put on the garlands that are left, and I'll use Grandmother's real lace bertha at the shoulders. Please, honey!"

Caroline said gently, "Of course I'll let you. It sounds lovely." But her heart was heavy, for more than the lost heirloom. It was heavy with the knowledge that Kate must one day break herself if she kept on beating her wings against the bars of circumstance.

What was there in Kate Meed, she wondered, that made her fight life and people and fate for the sheer thrill of fighting them?

In the smoke-blackened attic Jeff Howard was wondering this, too. At least he was wondering why this girl so unrelentingly fought him, and why she goaded him into fighting back, just as cruelly.

Other of the Blue Grass girls were being kind to him. The attractive Miss Chenault, whose father was a banker, had invited him to dinner. He'd been asked to join the town Hop Club, an old institution run by the elect. But these things did not suffice. The girl who had become an obsession with him, Kate Meed, despised him and thought the worst of him. So be it.

Pontiac Comes Out With 2 New Cars

New Models Are Confined to the DeLux Six and Eight

Following on the heels of two highly successful years, Pontiac enters the 1937 automobile year with two lines of cars (de luxe six and de luxe eight) longer in wheelbase, roomier, lower, even more pleasing in appearance, improved in comfortable riding qualities, with larger and more powerful engines, faster acceleration, higher top speed, additional economy and an all-around performance that is more brilliant in every way.

Master Six models, with their conventional springing and not quite so many refinements, have been discontinued so that the economies of engineering and manufacturing can be concentrated on a single line of de luxe sixes and de luxe eights of equal quality.

The gain in value thus offered is reflected in the prices of the de luxe six which are lower than the 1936 de luxe six.

Both lines will offer seven body styles: business coupe, sport coupe, cabriolet, two-door sedan, two-door touring sedan, four-door sedan and four-door touring sedan although the straight sedan in both two-door and four-door eights will be built on order only. Prices range from $650 to $810 for the six, and from $725 to $850 for the eight.

These 14 bodies will be available in seven colors with striping that provides a harmonizing contrast. Basic colors are black, blue, brown, gray, green, maroon and cream. A choice of light tan luxurious mohair or mixed wool upholstery cloth of high quality is provided, except the convertible, buffed, crush grain, tan Spanish leather or taupe colored worsted Bedford cloth.

Most identifying Pontiac mark of the last two years, the silver star radiator and hood grilles, are being retained with some modification. Radiator and top hood grille extending from bumper to cowl is narrower for 1937, consisting of a wide center bar separating six narrower bars.

Although most of the basic characteristics of Pontiac engineering have been retained the chassis has been redesigned where necessary to meet the trend toward longer and lower cars. There has been no effort at a make-shift or compromise with the 1936 design for 1937.

Artistic engineers have grouped together the elements of contour, lines, sparkle and color into a unit of personal transportation that has an undeniable appearance appeal.

Wheelbases are five inches longer (117 for the six and 122 for the eight), while over-all lengths are 193 and 198 inches, respectively. Tops are one inch lower (67 inches) with more of

Paints the Tragedy of Great Riches

In "Golden Wedding" (Harpers; $2.50), Miss Anne Parrish turns her ever penetrating eye on that not always edifying phenomenon, the rolling-rich American industrialist.

When Dan Briggs marries Laura Lealand in 1893, he is poor, but he dreams vast dreams of the day when he will have a fortune at his command. In his eyes, money is the be all and end all.

In 1933 he is one of the richest men in the United States. But his millions have brought him none of the things he expected. His fine qualities have been weakened by his Midas touch, his ability to a mass the fortune he has acquired.

Even his family has suffered. His wife, Laura, confused and made inadequate by money. His children are lovable, but spoiled. Each of them in turn ruins his own life through too great or too little confidence in the power of money.

On the golden wedding day of Dan and Laura, the family—children and relatives, mother and father—stand together, no better, perhaps a little worse, for Dan's achievement.

Anne Parrish sees the essential tragedy of her central figure with deep compassion, and she writes, as always, with vitality and probity.

She has not said all there is to say on her subject. There are great opportunities in such a plot which she does not seize. Her book opens one's eyes to the possibility of another, longer novel on such a subject, which would delve deeper, and cover a wider territory than does "Golden Wedding."—E. M. T.

THE CHRISTIAN WARFARE
Devotional Reading: II Corinthians 13:11

The plan of our lessons has associated the historical reference to Paul's visits to different cities, as recorded in the Book of Acts, with passages in Paul's letters to churches that were directed to the Christians in each particular city.

Here we have a striking passage concerning Paul's work as a preacher in Ephesus, and along with it the great exhortation to Christian warfare which Paul addressed to the Ephesians in the sixth chapter of his Epistle.

Ephesus was a city of great commercial importance but its distinction was not confined to its commerce and wealth.

The Temple of Diana in Ephesus was listed among the seven wonders of the world, so that it was without warrant that, in their uproar against Paul, the people cried, "Great is Diana of the Ephesians."

It will be recalled that the silver-smiths, who made shrines for the Temple of Diana, were much concerned over the success of Paul's attack on idolatry, because they believed that their craft was in danger. If the smiths had said, "We are in danger of losing trade," like many others who have traded profitably in religion, they sought to stir up violence against Paul by appeal to religious prejudice.

We ought to grasp here a very definite sense of the faith and courage of this man Paul. He came into the ancient and wealthy city, and in the very shadows of this temple, in the midst of a people who were enthusiastic about it, and its worship—told the simple story of the Jew who was crucified on a cross, who offered no earthly rewards, who did not give even the assurance of ease and comfort; but who offered men an inner peace and rest of the soul, and demanded of them a high quality of character and life.

One's faith in human nature is strengthened, too, by the fact that everywhere that Paul went were those who met his challenge and appeal. One of the new converts was a Jew, or that they could achieve Christian life and character without peril and struggle. It is into this situation of the early Christians, earnestly striving to know the meaning of the new faith and live in accordance with it, that Paul brings his exhortation to strength and courage, derived from the illustration of the well-equipped and stalwart warrior.

The Christian must take to himself the whole armor of God. He must have every part of his body protected, and, in addition, must have the shield of faith and the helmet of salvation. With this outward equipment, there must be the inner strengthening of his own soul through prayer and supplication, and he must find, through prayer, the outreach of fellowship with all the saints.

Perhaps it was encouraging to these Christians that Paul asked their prayer for himself. In effect, he was saying to them, "I am weak and tempted, too. Help me, that we may mutually make a great fight."

covered running boards joint front but not rear fenders. Steel wheels have large diameter, hollow chromed hub caps with 16x6.00-inch tires on the six and 16x6.50 on eight-cylinder models.

The solid steel turret top Fisher bodies now have 100 per cent steel construction throughout. They are larger and roomier in almost every dimension. Although the cars are one inch lower at the highest point, nevertheless the head room from floor to roof has been increased three and one-quarter inches. In addition to advantages of head room and higher seating, it is now possible to step directly from the curb to the car floor, since the floor is only 15½ inches from the ground at the rear door.

Beautiful, Yes—But Dumb? No! When Dancing Jobs Are Scarce

HOLLYWOOD.—There are plenty of tiki-town's chorus girls who can't be placed in the beautiful but dumb category. Some of 'em are pretty smart, and not as gold diggers, either. They've learned that it's wise to have working shoes as well as dancing shoes.

Hoofing in motion picture musicals is nice work when you can get it. The pay usually runs to about $75 a week.

But no matter how talented a girl may be, she can't always get that kind of work. The Motion Picture Producers' Association and its mutually supported Central Casting Bureau for years have been warning chorus girls and extras alike that it's unwise to come to Hollywood and try for film jobs unless one has a separate income or other means of earning a living.

And that's the reason a surprising number of Hollywood's dancing cuties have other employment in sight when casting offices say, "Sorry, nothing today." Most remarkable example in blond Mariel Scheek. She writes, successfully.

Sold Two Plays

For three years she has been tapping out dance routines before the cameras and tapping out original screen plays on the typewriter before the pictures.

She has sold two of her stories. RKO bought one—"Million Dollar Profile"—which shortly will reach the screen as a starring vehicle for Gene Raymond. It has been retitled "The Smartest Girl in Town."

The other, a story for a musical, was purchased by Vincent Youmans. He, in turn, is writing a score for the year.

As It Is

I might wish the world were better,
I might sit around and sigh
For a water that is wetter
And a bluer sort of sky.
There are times I think the weather
Could be much improved upon,
But when taken altogether,
It's a good old world we're on,
I might tell how I would make it,
But when I have had my say
It is still my job to take it,
As it is, from day to day.
I might wish that men were kinder,
And less eager after gold;
I might wish that they were blinder
To the faults they now behold.
And I'd try to make them gentler,
And more tolerant in strife
And a bit more sentimental
Over the finer things of life.
But I am not here to make them,
Or to work in human clay;
It is still my work to take them,
As they are from day to day.
We shall see that He who planned it
Knew our needs along the way.

With Mrs. E. S. Richards, Mrs. J. F. Gerin, Miss Mary Carrigan and Miss Maggie Bell as hostesses, the November meeting of the Pat Cleburne chapter, U. D. C., was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Richards on South Elm street. Lovely pink roses were used throughout the reception suite, and the dining room was beautifully decorated with red roses and white carnations. The meeting was opened by the chapter president, Mrs. C. S. Lowthorp, and led in the salute to the Confederate flag, followed by the ritual and chapter hymn, closing the devotion.

First 100 Farm Homesteads of U. S. to Be Ready November 20

Their Dedication in Arkansas to Be Made by Tugwell

Resettlement Administrator and Senator Robinson Are Guests

3,600-ACRE TRACT
Near England, Ark., It's Cut Up Into 100 Farms of 36 Acres

Washington officials, members of congress, state officials of Arkansas, Louisiana and Mississippi, and many others will attend the dedication of the Wright Community Resettlement project near England in Jefferson county, Arkansas, on Friday, November 20, the first dedication of its kind in the United States.

Administrator Rexford G. Tugwell and Senator Joe T. Robinson, Democratic majority leader of the senate, have accepted invitations, and Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace has indicated he will attend.

The map shows the general layout of the 3,600-acre tract of fertile land in the Arkansas river valley between Little Rock and Pine Bluff, 3,600 of which have been divided into 36-acre farms for the resettlement of 100 low-income farm families.

About 450 persons are employed, with a monthly payroll of $32,000, in construction of the 100 four, five and six-room houses, which will be ready for occupancy in time for the resettled families to make a 1937 crop, according to Regional Director T. Roy Reid. This is the first of several similar projects approved for the sixth region, in which the resettled families will be given 40 years to amortize their debt to the government at 3 per cent interest.

brightened the rooms and the gifts were numerous and beautiful. Following an evening of games and conversation, a most tempting salad course was served by the hostess.

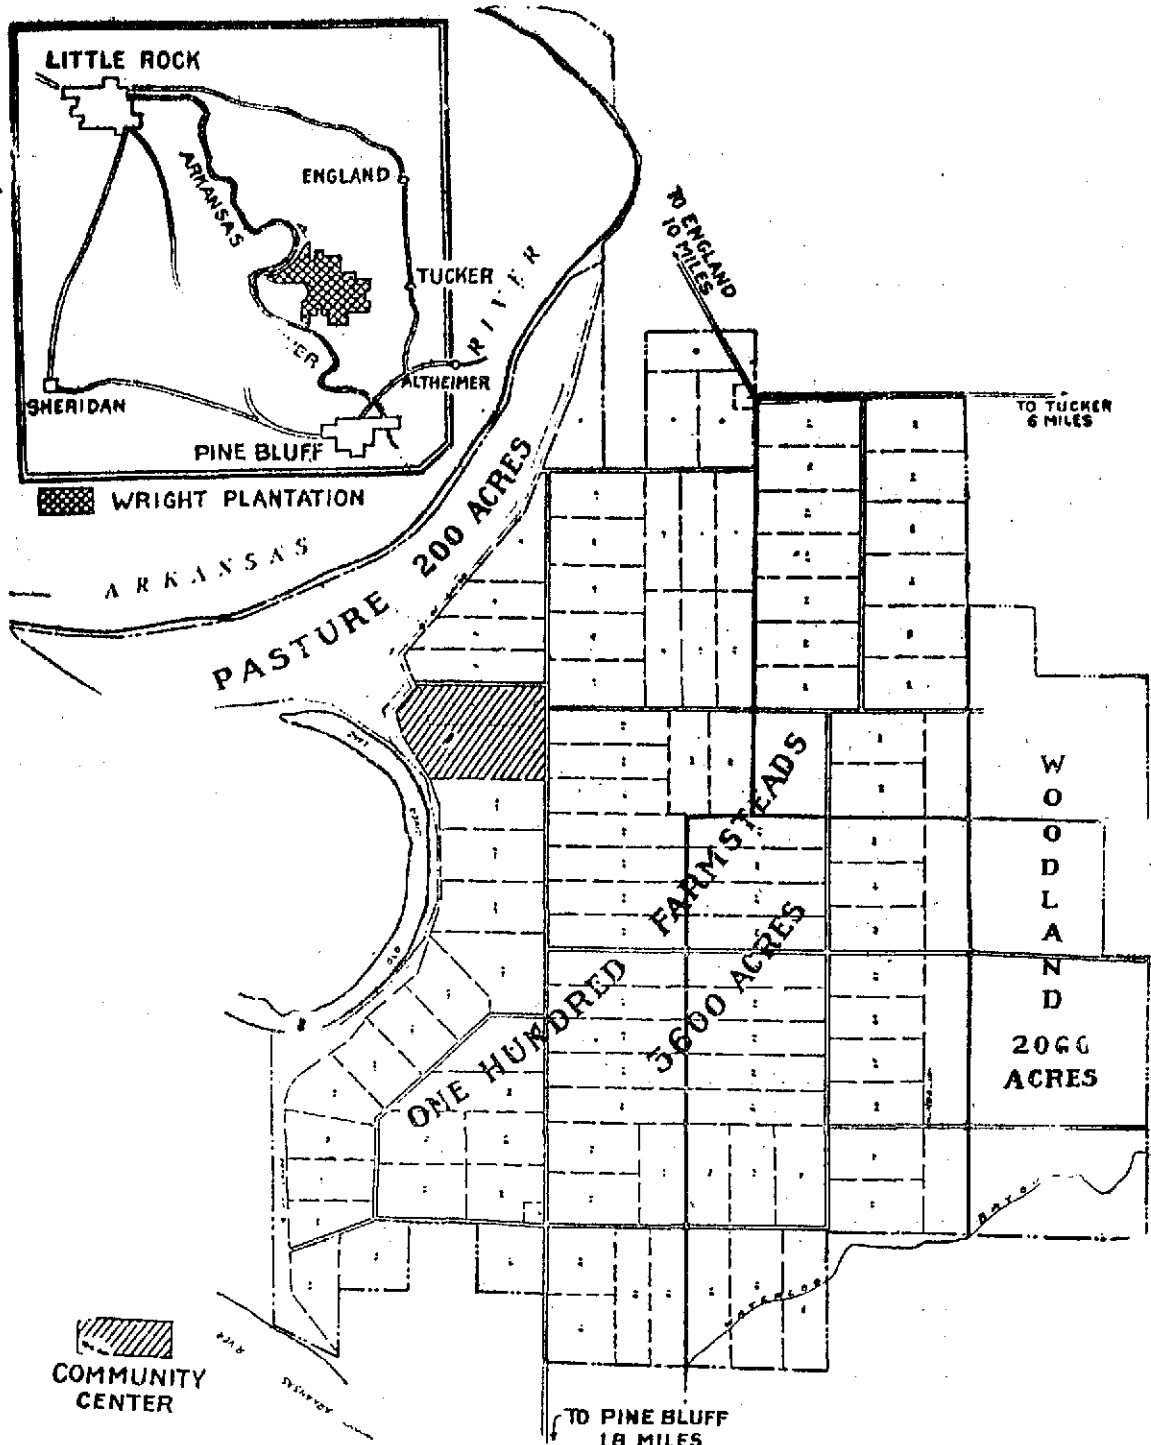

On Thursday evening between the hours of 8 and 10 an informal reception was held in the Assembly room of the Educational Building, First Baptist church, to meet the new pastor and his wife, Dr. and Mrs. W. R. Hamilton. The guests were met at the door by a reception committee and were cordially received by Dr. and Mrs. Hamilton. The large assembly room was beautifully decorated with lovely pink roses arranged in tall vases and baskets, and the guests were seated for a tea service of hot punch and cookies. Notable among the guests were Dr. and Mrs. Thos. Brewster of the First Presbyterian church and Rev. and Mrs. W. A. Hammond of the First Christian church and Mayor Albert Graves.

Mrs. Walter Carter, Mrs. J. A. Ramsey, Mrs. Geo. Dodd and Mrs. Edwin Dossett, the presidents of the four local P. T. A. units have returned from the 12th annual convention of the Arkansas Congress of Parents and Teachers held in the Arlington Hotel, Hot Springs. The theme of the convention was "The Bad Citizenship of Good Citizens" and outstanding among the speakers were Dr. Joseph M. Artman of Chicago, who spoke on "Character Is Formed By Conflict," and J. C. Newman, special agent in charge of the St. Louis office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, whose subject was "Crime and the Citizens." G-Man Newman was sent to the congress by the courtesy of J. E. Hoover of the Department of Justice in Washington, D. C. Each of the four local units received certificate awards as superior organizations of last year.

Mrs. Owen Atkins, Mrs. Homer Reeves, Miss Nora Gordon, Miss Ray Mayton, Miss Mary Middlebrooks, and Ronald Smith, all of the Patmos school faculty are attending the A. E. A. convention in Hot Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. V. L. Wortham of Prescott, Ark., announce the marriage of their daughter, Ruth Almeria, to Lindell L. Buchanan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vern Buchanan also of Prescott, on Thursday afternoon at 4 p. m., November 5, 1936. The ceremony was performed in the study of the Rev. J. F. Queen, Pastor of the First Baptist church, Prescott. Miss Euna Mae Brown of Prescott and John M. Wortham of Shreveport, La., brother of the bride, were the only attendants. The bride was lovely in a model of autumn brown with fashionable gold trim and matching accessories. Her shoulder corsage was of Talcottian roses. The bride is a graduate of the Prescott High School and attended Henderson State Teachers College, Arkadelphia, and for the past two years has taught in the Blevins Public Schools. The groom is a graduate of the Prescott High School and is now connected with his father in business. After a wedding trip to the Texas Centennial in Dallas, Mr. and Mrs. Buchanan will be at home in Prescott.

Big Trips Cost Colleges About $20,000

Transportation Is Big Expense Item

Rail Cost From Coast to Coast in Neighborhood of $12,000

By TINY THORNHILL
Head Coach, Stanford University

PALO ALTO—Transporting a big-time varsity from each or south for the Rose Bowl game, or shipping a Pacific coast team east for an inter-sectional contest, costs in the neighborhood of $20,000.

That is an astonishing figure to some, who look upon such expenditure as a waste of money. But inter-sectional games furnish entertainment for thousands of people, and give college players an education that they would be unable to attain through private resources.

Players are only young once, and they see things and make associates that would be impossible to attain in any other way. After all, the fellows have it coming to them; they sacrifice a great deal of social life in school to help the football team, and these games are more or less of a reward for their services.

The games themselves teach athletes the competitive spirit which, when boiled down, is what they'll face after college in business or in some other line of endeavor.

At Stanford we have been in the Rose Bowl six times in the last 10 years, and have made three eastern trips in the last eight years. Starting this year with Columbia, on November 28, we play a series of three games on the east coast, two with the Lions and one with Dartmouth. So we have a pretty fair idea of what it takes to conduct inter-sectional contests.

It costs plenty of money to make such a trip. On the journey we carry an average of 38 men, and, if the games fall off or near the end of the season, we must outfit every player. This new equipment runs around $60 a man which, although seemingly high—the total runs around $2000—is the smallest item with which we have to contend.

Rail Costs High

Transportation is the big item. Figuring rail and bus fare, the figure for shipping a team from coast to coast runs very high—in the neighborhood of $10,000 to $12,000.

Then there are food bills, hotel bills, and incidental expenses run up by the boys on the trip. These figures generally will add up to between $4000 and $5000.

In connection with the Rose Bowl game, many persons figure that the western squad has little expense to meet. However, this item is considerable, considering the fact that the game is nearly in our back yard.

Stanford's expense in the past has been around $8000 for a trip to the Bowl. This is itemized thusly: Equipment, $2000; travel budget, between $1500 and $1700; and hotel and incidental expenses, between $3500 and $3700.

Reason for the high food and hotel bills is that this particular game is played on New Year's Day, and our school usually is out for the Christmas holidays. This means that all the sleeping and eating facilities must be furnished by the school for the players who are held over for the game.

Big Games Broadening
Many persons wonder what football players get out of the games besides travel.

In playing inter-sectional contests, each section has a chance to show its wares and prove superiority over the other. Also, the games give the boys on the western teams a chance to get away from their own environment and see just what other schools in different sections of the country are doing.

It is a known fact that our boys out here really enjoy going east to put on a show and convince the effete section that we really are civilized and not living in blankets and wearing feathered headresses.

I don't believe there is a football show in the country that carries the color and glamour of the Rose Bowl tilt. The mere fact that it is the big goal of every major eleven in the country proves its importance.

Expenses are incidental; the glory and the prestige the winning eleven gathers more than recompenses for the amount spent to make the trip.

Winning Plays of 1936

By ART KRENZ
NEA Service Sports Artist

The football dynasty of the mighty men of Minnesota ended after a run of 21 straight victories when big Steve TOTH, Northwestern University's fullback, plunged over the Gophers' goal from the 1-yard line.

While the 6-0 victory in the sea of mud that was Dyer Stadium field in Evanston was justly deserved, somewhat of a stigma was placed thereon by the fact that the score came after a penalty for unnecessary roughness had placed the ball in scoring position.

Following Fullback Geyer's unsuccessful bid for a field goal from the 20-yard line, Minnesota took the ball on that same marker following the touchdown. Uram failed to gain. For taking too much time in the huddle the Gophers were penalized five yards and, when Alphonse struck at the line, he hit an immovable wall and fumbled. Dewitt Gibson, Wildcat tackle, recovered.

With the Wildcats keyed up to high pitch, Don Heap fumbled and lost two yards. Then Geyer hit the line for two. It was here that Co-Capt. Ed Widseth, tackle, was discovered slipping Geyer in the face, and the resulting penalty put the ball on the Gophers' 1-yard line.

One crack at the line picked up half a yard before the teams changed sides at the end of the third quarter. The first play of the fourth TOTH hit at the center of the line and picked up a few inches. Then followed the payoff play.

TOTH took the ball from center and, running as if to hit center again, swerved and went off the Gophers' defensive left tackle for the touchdown. Ollie Adelman, in for Heap, decoyed to the right. Vanzo, the big blocking quarterback, cut over and blocked out the defensive left end. Jefferson, right half, blocked out his man successfully.

Wildcats' "Pappy" Waldorf Learned Most of His Football From His Boys

Gridiron Game Is Fun for Country's Top Team and Coaches—Boys Have Got to Like You If You Get the Most Out of Them!

By Harry Grayson
NEA Sports Writer

Evanston—Lynn Waldorf was known as a November coach when he assumed command of Northwestern's football forces last year. In eight seasons his clubs have lost only two contests in November.

"I guess I never have learned to bring a team to top form soon enough. It is one of those things that I must get around to doing," remarked Waldorf, when on November 2 of last year his Wildcats lived up to their coach's reputation by beating Illinois after having lost to Purdue, Ohio State, and Minnesota.

Waldorf seems to have corrected his one fault, for Northwestern hasn't been repelled since.

But Waldorf plainly found a way of making haste more rapidly in an easy manner. Beating mighty Minnesota and being in the position of protecting the foremost position in football hasn't altered the practice of the Northwestern array. It still is a bunch of kids having a lot of fun, with their coaches enjoying the sport as much as they do.

Waldorf played under Chick Mechar at Syracuse, and surrounded himself with smart football men as head coach of Oklahoma A. & M., Kansas State, and Northwestern.

"But I believe that I learned most of my football from the boys I taught either as members of my teams or at coaching schools," explains Lynn O. "It is amazing what their questions bring out and what you learn in trying to adapt plays to material."

Vanzo, Jefferson Deliver
When Northwestern sprang one of the bigger upsets of 1935 by beating Notre Dame, Waldorf remarked that it was a happy culmination for boys the Northwestern freshmen against the varsity. "The 220-pound chap, who played so much tackle at Syracuse isn't the most accomplished passer in the world, but blond Don Heap, Ollie Adelman, Fred Vanzo, and the others were getting a terrific kick out of knocking down or intercepting their coach's passes.

And the whoop let out by Waldorf when he completed a forward won't be any more enthusiastic if he completes a perfect season by repulsing Notre Dame, November 21.

Although Waldorf is only 34, the Northwestern players call him "Pappy." I can't recall a coach who was—or is—closer to his men.

"The boys have got to like you if you are to get the most out of them," smiles Waldorf. "A coach has no business treating college men like so many wooden soldiers. When football ceases to be sport I'll quit."

"We whipped Minnesota in the line, and the reason we were able to do it was that our linemen like their coach, Earl Ingversen. They play their heads off for him."

THE FINAL VERDICT

The Arkansas Athletic association, meeting in Hot Springs Thursday, rejected a proposal for a play-off for the Arkansas prep school grid supremacy. Main objection to such a plan was that it would extend the season into December and would be too strenuous on high school athletes. Strong arguments can be advanced for and against such a system.

Dubh DeLoache, sports editor of the Jonesboro Evening Sun, while favoring a play-off system, also points out the undesirable elements. He comments:

"It would be a fine thing. But it would be tough for a big team to go through one of the stiffest schedules of the season undefeated while little Podunk also went through the season undefeated but didn't meet anything stronger than the Flatville Never-Dies or some such set-up."

"And then in the play-off little Podunk might luck out on the tough club that had met all the big teams."

LOOKS TOUGH TO HIM

Wayne "Red" Swain, assistant coach of the Hot Springs Trojans, was sent here last Friday night to scout the Hope-Camden football game. Swain was getting the low-down on both teams because the Trojans meet Camden this Friday and Hope plays the Trojans Thanksgiving.

After the game Swain said:

"They looked like a pair of college teams to me."

RESENTS WRITE-UP

Dear Sir: In reviewing the write-up which the Camden newspaper gave us I noticed that the Camden writer used a sentence which I regret very much. Perhaps in the heat of the hours that followed the game it was thoughtlessly done. However, our Bobcats must be given credit for what they did do.

The sentence I am referring to in the Camden paper was that Hope on a lucky pass (get that will you) made the winning touchdown a few minutes after Camden's touchdown was called back.

I can recall at least six times this year when Hope has used that same play for a touchdown. It has worked on some of the best teams in the state and it worked on Camden.

I just like to see the boys get credit for what they do.

—A Bobcat Fan.

PULLING FOR TIGERS

The DeQueen Citizen, in a recent issue of the newspaper, came out for the Little Rock High School Tigers to win the state football championship!

The newspaper said:

"After the smoke of last week's football battles cleared away Blytheville, Hope and Little Rock High were the only major high school teams remaining undefeated. Blytheville has not been defeated or tied in the past 25 games played, but its schedules concededly have not been as formidable as those of Hope and Little Rock, both of which teams have been tied this year. Knowing Coach Clyde Vansickle, we here and now pick his Little Rock Tigers for the state championship."

PICKS HIS PANTHERS

Al Rose, editor of the Camden News, paragraphs:

"In case you didn't know it the Panthers journey to Hot Springs for another of those tough games. Fyon Hope on out the Panthers run into teams just a little tougher. Don't sell the Trojans short. They have lost but one game and that to a Zebra team fighting for its life because of its 12-0 defeat by El Dorado. The Trojans are always tough but we believe the Panthers can take 'em. But they must look like they did against Hope and make those markers so they'll count this time."

FROM UTAH

Dick Simpson, Hope boy who is making a name for himself as a jockey on the American turf, postcards from Ogden, Utah:

"Now is Ogden, Utah, half way to California. Beautiful scenery out here. Say hello to all. On way to San Mateo, California."

who had suffered three defeats.

Following the victory over Minnesota, Lynn O. plainly derives the most satisfaction out of the performances of Vanzo and Bernie Jefferson.

The blocking and defensive work of Vanzo, 215-pound quarterback, was so superb that it attracted All-American attention.

"I am extremely happy about Vanzo's game, for it will make him forget the Purdue game in which he was the victim of a bad break last season," says Waldorf.

"A young and awkward substitute for Duval, Vanzo helped buck the ball to the Purdue four-yard line where he fumbled and we lost the ball. He has felt very badly about this, which is something I don't want my players to do."

"I am very proud of Jefferson. He danced in one place when we got him. See his long stride now. And there was plenty of courage in back of that long kick he got off from behind our goal line."

Lynn Waldorf is the kind of a man you would like to have coach your boy.

Play-Off System Warmly Debated

Foy Hammons Urges Adoption, But Proposal Loses 55 to 20

HOT SPRINGS—The Arkansas Athletic Association, smothered, after more than an hour's debate, Thursday, a proposal to amend the by-laws and set up procedure for determining the Arkansas high school football championship. The vote was 20 for and 55 against.

As originally presented the proposal, was that four championship contending teams would be selected by the president and executive committee of the association.

Coch Mervin Perry of Hot Springs succeeded in changing the proposal. Under his amendment, the executive committee would meet immediately after Thanksgiving and name the four contending teams. Two games would be played a week later and the championship game a week after that.

Then, having adopted Perry's amendment, the association proceeded to throw the whole proposal out the window.

Proposal Attacked Hotly
Then school superintendents opened a barrage on the proposal.

L. P. Mann, Newport, former president of the association. He said he believed the football season should end on Thanksgiving Day, and voiced the opinion that a majority of players held the same belief. He predicted that, adoption of the proposal would bring the association much grief.

H. F. Dial, Pine Bluff, agreed with everything his Newport colleague had said and added that to continue the football season beyond Thanksgiving "would be too hard on the boys." He said that in Texas, where a state championship eleven is designated in

Razorbacks Ready for Rice Contest

Porkers to Be in Shape for Homecoming Game Saturday

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. —(AP)—The University of Arkansas is ready to greet Saturday the hundreds expected to return for the annual Homecoming day gridiron battle with Rice Institute. The Porkers closed strenuous drills and will confine their activities Friday to signal practice.

Lunday May Play

Kenneth Lunday, out with a broken finger since the Louisiana State game, may play part of the game at gun or tackle. Sophomore Lloyd Wood will start at center, with John Donaldson in reserve.

The game will feature classy ball carriers for both teams. Jack Robbins, Allen Green, Dwight Sloan, Bobbie Martin, Van Brown, Ralph Rawlings, Lloyd Montgomery and Marion Fletcher will "carry the mail" for Arkansas. Rice has Buck Friedman, Tom Vick, John Neece, Roy Royall, Charles Schuele and "Scat" Sullivan.

It will bring together two of the Southwest Conference's outstanding tackles in Cliff Van Sickle of the Porkers and John Frankie of the Owls. Fans also will watch expert guard duties performed by Billy Ard of Rice and Percy Sanders of Arkansas.

Fayetteville business houses, fraternity and sorority houses and private homes were decorated for the homecoming event, which will get under way Friday night with a pep rally.

The Rice Institute band and several hundred students and fans from Houston will arrive Saturday morning in time to participate in the parade, a feature of the celebration since 1920.

Queen to Reign

Miss Lucille James, Broken Bow, Okla., will be queen. The parade will include the queen's float, the Razorback band and floats of the sororities and fraternities.

Shortly before the kick-off, Miss James will present to Captain Van Sickle of the Porkers the ball to be used in the game. Gov.-elect C. E. Bailey and Mrs. Louise Thaden, winner of the recent Bendix cross country air race, are expected to be in the stands.

on championship games." C. A. Dodson, Snackover, said that about the only way the championship could be decided on Thanksgiving day would be to cut short the regular season. He opposed the proposal.

President Clary Neutral

President J. D. Clary, Fordyce, in his annual report, said that he neither recommended or opposed the proposition, which was entirely up to the members. He said that the reason for bringing it up was the hue and cry raised at the end of last season for a game between Pine Bluff and Blytheville.

President Clary took notice of reports that coaches and other representatives of schools are invading territory of other schools, hiring away players.

"How can one teach honesty to pupils and yet violate eligibility and other rules?" he asked. High school athletics cannot be placed on the highest plane unless all the rules are lived up to, President Clary said.

The report of Treasurer L. M. Goza of Arkadelphia, showed a balance of $1,379.13.

composed of contiguous counties, it would be impossible to make such an even division.

For the purpose of comparison, however, it was determined that eight of the state's 24 senatorial districts have more than 60,000 population each while 10 have less than 30,000 each. The remaining districts, each represented by one senator, were near enough to the 53,000 average to be disregarded in the comparison.

The under 40,000 districts are No. 3 (Boone, Marion, Newton), No. 5 (Washington), No. 6 (Stone, Independence), No. 19 (Ouachita, Calhoun), No. 23 (Baxter, Fulton, Izard), No. 24 (Madison, Carroll), No. 25 (Crawford, Franklin), No. 30 (Pike, Clark), No. 33 (Scott, Folk), and No. 34 (Benton).

The over 60,000 districts are No. 10 (Perry, Pulaski), No. 11 (Jefferson), No. 14 (Lee, Phillips), No. 18 (Union, Bradley), No. 21 (Columbia, LaFayette, Miller), No. 27 (Faulkner, White), No. 29 (Mississippi, Poinsett, Jackson), and No. 32 (St. Francis and Crittenden).

The board which will be responsible for the new alignment of senators and representatives will be composed of Carl E. Bailey, who will be governor; C. G. "Crip" Hall, who will be secretary of state; and Jack Holt, who will be attorney general.

Honolulu Suffers in Shipping Strike

Presidential Intervention Sought in Pacific Tieup

SAN FRANCISCO.—(AP)—The strike blockade of American shipping became acute in many ports Thursday night and leaders on both sides indicated they expected presidential intervention in the situation.

One New York ship operator accused strikers of instituting a "reign of terror" to spread their walkout there. A strike leader reported that ship owners had hired "mobsters" to attack pickets.

Seamen's union "insurgents" attempted anew to tie up the port of Boston. Many strikers were held by police in Galveston and New Orleans. Food prices soared in Honolulu. Travelers competed with each other for passage between Hawaii and the mainland. Five of them decided to pay $200 fines each and sail on foreign ships. This fine is imposed on foreign lines if they carry passengers between American ports.

Tomatoes at 30 cents a pound doubled their nominal price in Honolulu and other perishable foodstuffs went up proportionately. There was no danger of a serious food shortage, however, since storekeepers stocked up well on canned and other non-perishable foodstuffs.

The round-the-world Dollar liner President Hayes, with 71 passengers, and the Matson liner Lurline, with 300 passengers, were strikebound in Honolulu.

The University of Hawaii football team chafed over the prospect of not sailing to Salt Lake City to meet the University of Utah eleven on November 14.

Hawaii Heavy Buyer HONOLULU, T. H.—(AP)—In the first six months of 1936 the territory of Hawaii imported mainland products to the value of $4,581,423.

America's first coal mine was opened in 1730 near Richmond, Va., whence commercial shipments were made to Boston, Philadelphia, and New York as late as 1789.

Questions That Some Folks Ask About Cardui

BENEFIT FOR MAL-NUTRITION Thousands of women testify Cardui has helped them to overcome malnutrition and to ease many of the functional pains of menstruation.

"What is meant by 'helping to overcome malnutrition'?"

Cardui contains extracts of two plants which are classed among the "bitters" in medicine because they are known to increase the flow of digestive juices—to improve digestion—so there is a craving for sufficient food for the body's needs, and by their action more energy (or strength) is obtained from the food eaten. The food, of course, brings the additional strength, but Cardui serves as the means to this end by its good influence on the digestive system. —adv.

are quite occupied with their business in China; and Russia is quite occupied with the threats against her in Europe. "The war danger seems to me to be lessening for the moment in Asia—and yet Communism, or Bolshevism, remains as the greatest threat to peace, a veritable invention of the devil."

"I came home from Korea by way of Russia—and found Russia to be a land of decay, the product of an economic philosophy which prohibits the people from owning their own cars, their own farms, or any other private property. Such a policy robs the people of all incentive, and is reflected in the dejected spirit of the entire nation."

"The Japanese live in deadly fear that such a spirit might penetrate their own people—and in that fear lies the seed of possible future war."

Humorous Notes

Dr. Wilson paid tribute to one side of Japanese private life. He said that when a Japanese business man goes home after the day's work he sheds his American clothes, takes a bath, and then lounges about the house during the evening in his comfortable and of the doctor's famous jokes in Korea. healthful kimono. The speaker observed that this allowed the Japanese to relax thoroughly—and he cited this as an improvement over the high-tension life of Americans, who die early of heart disease. Dr. Wilson said that he found his own relaxation in Korea by going away in the mountains once a week with his dogs and his guns, and forgetting about the hospital and the problems of the sick.

He recalled an amusing thing in a Japanese hotel. The Japanese place very hot water in a huge tub for their hotel guests. An American, having robbed for the bath, found the water too hot. While he was pondering how to cool it off a Japanese hotel maid came in to scrub his back, after the country's custom. "The embarrassed American promptly jumped in the tub. But it was too hot, and he jumped out again. The Japanese maid looked astonished—and so he jumped in again—but had to jump out again . . . whereupon the maid left the room and reported to the hotel management the case of the peculiar American who took his bath by jumping in and out of the tub!"

The Glass Eye
Another bit of humor was the doctor's story of the glass-eyes he would purchase for 20 cents. Going through the countryside he would see an old membership. Mrs. W. C. Franks served as co-hostess and Mrs. J. R. Floyd had charge of the program.

In the board meeting Sunday afternoon H. P. Rider was elected chairman, Dr. Richards, vice-chairman, and Geo. Dodds secretary. Mrs. V. A. Hammond and Mrs. Jewell Moore were elected sponsors for the Christian Endeavor Society. Other important business was transacted.

We welcome as our special guests for the evening service this week the members of the local American Legion post and the ladies of the local Legion Auxiliary Unit, who come to us for their annual Armistice Day and Memorial program. The male quartet from the First Baptist church will furnish special music for the service. The pastor, recently elected as chaplain of the local Legion post, will preach the sermon on "The Fruits of War."

Because of the special Armistice Day service Sunday night the Lord's Table will not be spread as a part of the service, as is our custom.

The pastor will speak at the eleven o'clock service on "Our Supreme Offering." There can be no secularities in the right kind of a Christian life. We are just as much called to be the right kind of a Christian yonder on Monday and Tuesday and Wednesday and all other days, as we are expected to be found at the House of God on the Lord's Day morning with a hymn book in our hands lustily singing praises to our God. Our Lord expects and has a right to demand of us a seven-day witness.

"The pastor says this week, 'Nowhere in the Bible does emphasis fall on money as a chief requisite for the triumph of God's cause.'"
